Millersville enabled the Daylight experience for the D2L environment on Monday June 12th.

- The Daylight experience is a more response design; users will have a more consistent experience when accessing D2L with different devices.
- The use of white space and simplified icons improves accessibility.
- Images used as course tiles now enable a quick visual reference for access to courses; the images persist as the corresponding course homepage banner.
- Announcements at the University level will no longer display announcements created in individual courses. Course announcements still trigger notifications (if enabled) and will be displayed on course homepages.

There are no additional feature or tool changes being made to the Millersville D2L system on Friday June 16, 2016 that will affect students or instructors.
