Our Affirmation Statement:

- Protect the civil rights of each individual, regardless of whom they love.
- Ensure equity among all people representative within the full spectrum of gender and sexual expression.
- Create an enduring culture of honor, compassion and respect for all.
Where is it dangerous to be out?

More than a third of the 196 countries recognized on this planet consider homosexuality illegal.

We cannot really know for sure how many LGBT people there are living in the world, but if we apply the evidence available to us at 10% of the population is gay, it’s safe to say that there are over 100 million LGBT people in the world, most of whom do not have legal protections from discrimination or violence.

The table below shows the countries where homosexuality is illegal. The information is based on data from the International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans and Intersex Association (ILGA).
