Getting an account

How do I get a D2L account?

If you are a current Millersville University student, faculty member, or staff member, you should have a D2L account already. D2L accounts are automatically generated for all current members of the Millersville University community.

If you've just joined the Millersville University community, either as a new student or as a new employee, there may be a short delay as your enrollment or employment paperwork is processed and entered into Banner, the University's student information system. If you have submitted all your enrollment or employment paperwork, have waited a few business days, and still do not have a D2L account, please contact the IT Help Desk.

If you are not a current Millersville University student, faculty member, or staff member, but you have reason to have a D2L account, please contact the IT Help Desk.

Please see the username and password page for more information on logging in to D2L.
